MARKETING & FUNNEL REVIEW

Somerled Funnel Audit

Where your funnel is leaking qualified STR owners, and exactly how to fix it.

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

The Short Version

I went through your funnel the way a new prospect would, filling out both forms and booking a call. Two days later I still hadn't received anything that made the case for Somerled.

That's a shame, because the proof is there: press in Business Insider and AD, plus 1,000+ profitable STRs designed. It just never reaches the prospect while they're deciding whether to book.

All of it is fixable. I've already built the new pages.

THE TOP 3 FIXES

1. Rebuild the landing page around a VSL
   A focused, benefit-led page with a 5-minute video and one action: "Free Design Strategy." Less copy, and designed for phones first.

2. One form, not two
   Replace the website form + Calendly combo with a single Typeform that saves partial responses, so every half-finished application can still be followed up.

3. Pre-sell before the call
   Answer objections with videos on the confirmation page, then keep showing up with daily emails and retargeting ads until the call. By then most of the selling is done.

FUNNEL SCORECARD

Where Leads Are Leaking

Every stage between first seeing an ad and showing up to the call, graded.

STAGE 1

Ads

NEEDS WORK

Good volume, but light on testimonials and static reels for retargeting. Ads aren't offer-led, so the landing page has to do the selling.

Landing Page

CRITICAL

Reads like a website. Lots to scroll and nothing pushing visitors to act. There's no video, and the mobile layout breaks.

STAGE 3

Application

CRITICAL

Two forms (website form + Calendly) before booking. Nothing is captured from people who start but don't finish.

Confirmation

CRITICAL

A bare "You are scheduled!" screen at the exact moment prospects start asking "why should I show up?"

STAGE 5

Pre-Call

CRITICAL

One automated text and two logistics emails. Nothing that builds authority between booking and the call.

STAGE 6

Content

NEEDS WORK

Strong Instagram short-form, but no long-form content (YouTube, masterclass) to nurture buyers.

What's working: Somerled's website is beautifully done, the Instagram content is strong, and the proof is real: press features, client results and a 1,000+ property portfolio. The fixes in this report put that proof in front of people right when they're deciding whether to book.

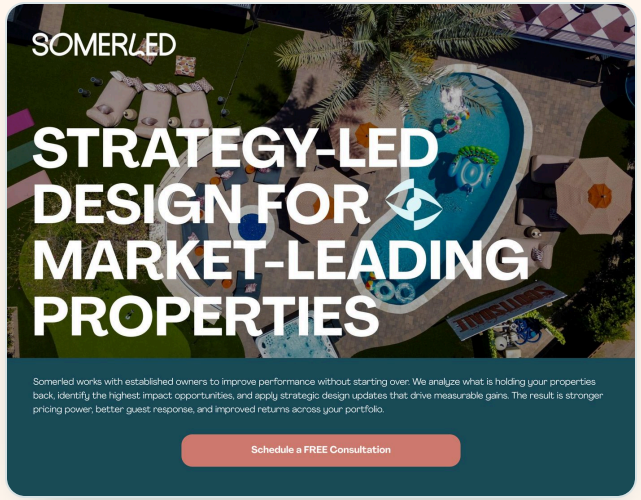

CRITICAL NEEDS WORK

STAGE 2 · LANDING PAGE

What's Happening Now

● CRITICAL

40–50%

of visitors scroll past the hero. 100% see it. The eyebrow, headline and video carry the page.

CURRENT PAGE · MOBILE

Left: the main button is squished and cut off. Right: the headline runs off the edge of the screen.

Why it's costing booked calls

- ✕ It's built like a website. Lots of sections and copy compete for attention, and it's easier to scroll than to act.
- ✕ No callout at the top telling visitors who this is for.
- ✕ The headline doesn't lead with the #1 benefit. People see 4,000–10,000 brand messages a day; the headline has to stop them.
- ✕ No video. The ads aren't offer-led, so the page needs to make the offer.
- ✕ Mobile breaks. Text runs off the screen and the main button gets squished.

STAGE 2 · LANDING PAGE

The Rebuild

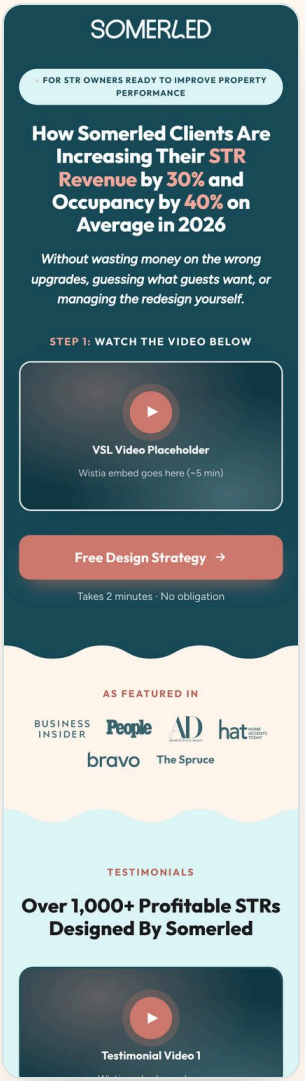

● BUILT & READY

NEW PAGE · DESKTOP

Why the page is mostly video: to get the full story, a visitor has to sit through five minutes. Serious owners will. Tire-kickers usually won't, so they filter themselves out before they ever book.

MOBILE

1. Eyebrow: "For STR Owners Ready to Improve Property Performance" calls out exactly who it's for.
2. Benefit headline: leads with the result: +30% revenue and +40% occupancy.
3. Subheadline knocks out the big objections: wasted money, guesswork, managing it yourself.
4. 5-minute VSL: the offer in the first 90 seconds, then credibility, with 3 calls to action inside the video. Tracked in Wistia.
5. One action: "Free Design Strategy" opens the application.
6. Proof below: Featured In logos (Business Insider, People, AD, Bravo and more) and a wall of video testimonials, then the button again.

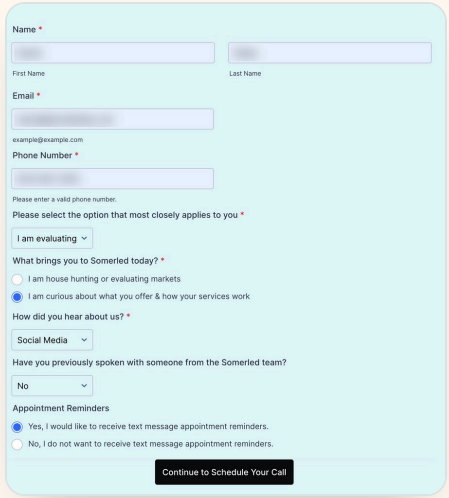

STAGE 3 · APPLICATION

Two Forms → One

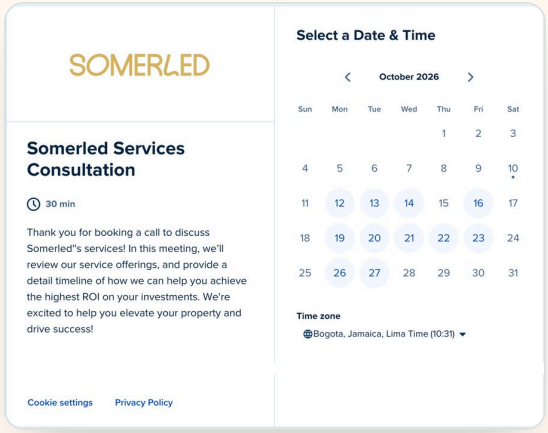

● CRITICAL

TODAY: TWO FORMS TO BOOK ONE CALL

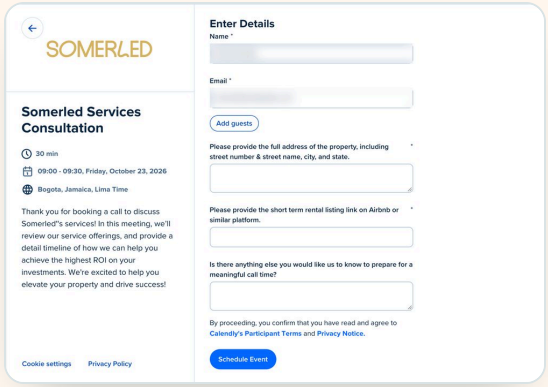

Form 1 · Website form

Form 2 · Calendly: pick a time...

...then fill in more details

PROPOSED: ONE PLACE, ONE FORM

Landing page — "Free Design Strategy"

One embedded Typeform — partial answers saved

Qualified — book + confirmation page

Not a fit — polite redirect

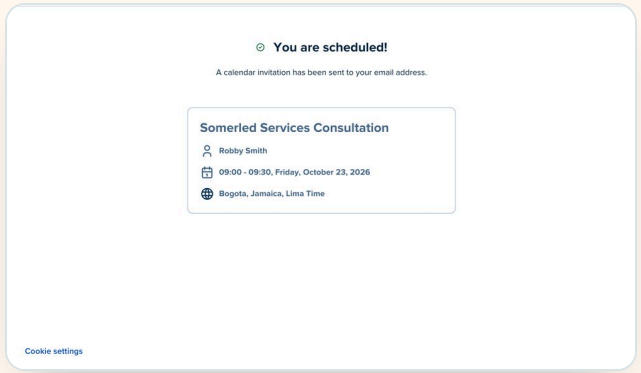

- ✓ From what I can tell, the biggest drop-off is the jump from the website form to the calendar, where prospects are asked for the same kind of details again. One form removes that jump.
- ✓ Most people who start a form never finish it. Typeform keeps whatever they typed, which gives you an email to follow up with, and their answers send them to the right page automatically.

STAGE 4 · CONFIRMATION PAGE

From "You're Scheduled" to Pre-Sold

● BUILT & READY

TODAY

Why this page matters most: once someone books, they shift from scanner mode (just looking) to justification mode: "Why should I actually show up to this call?"

NEW PAGE

- ✓ "IMPORTANT: confirm your call", so fewer no-shows from unconfirmed invites.
- ✓ Confirmation video: an FAQ, urgency, or "about our reviews" video, tracked in Wistia.
- ✓ 5 breakout videos that handle objections before the call:

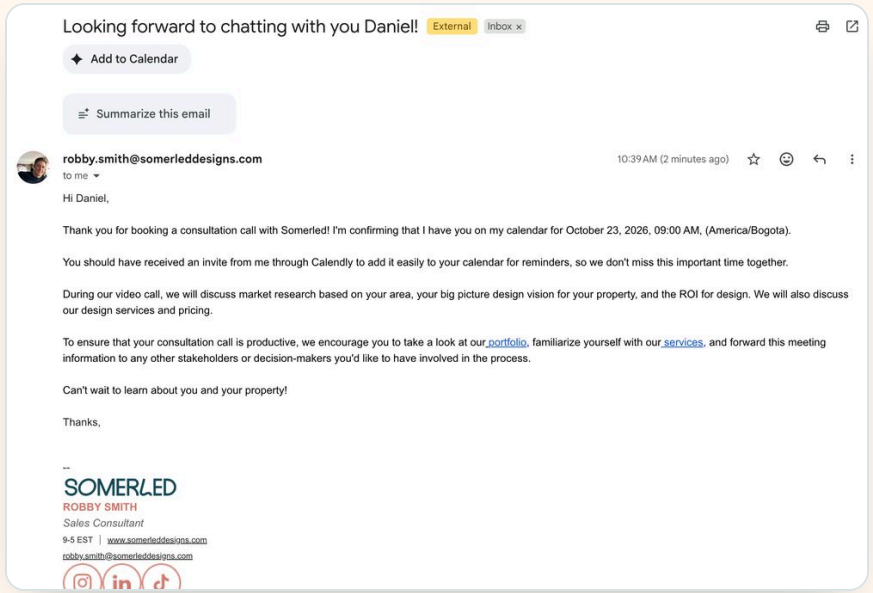

- ▶ What it costs & the ROI you can expect
- ▶ Virtual Design vs. Full Project Management
- ▶ How long a project takes
- ▶ How we use market data to pick upgrades
- ▶ What happens on your strategy call

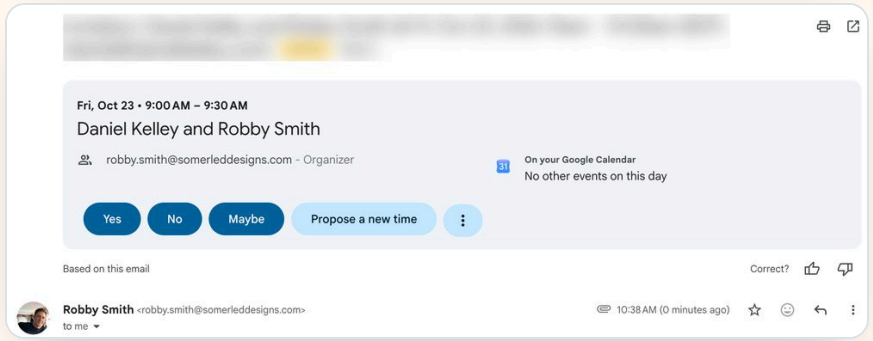

STAGE 5 · PRE-CALL NURTURE

Build Authority Before the Call

● CRITICAL

WHAT A PROSPECT RECEIVES TODAY

One automated text, a calendar invite, and a friendly logistics email. Helpful, but none of it builds the case for working with Somerled.

THE PLAN: SURROUND THEM UNTIL THE CALL

2 value-packed emails a day

Sent every day between booking and the call. Each one should teach the reader something useful and, along the way, take on a common objection:

- "It's too big an investment."
- "I need to think about it."
- "I don't see the value of design yet."

Booked-call retargeting ads

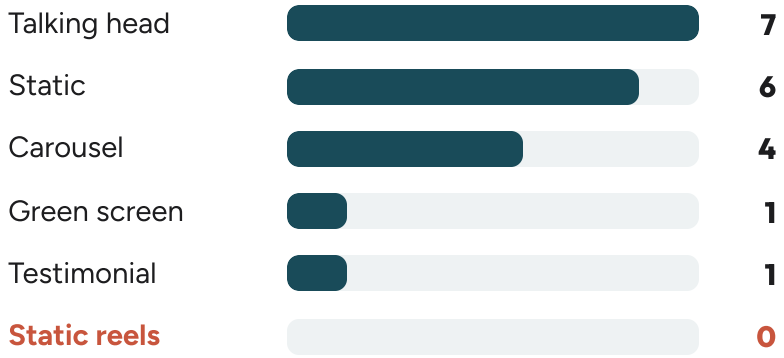

- 10+ ad sets with one ad in each, running at a frequency of 15+
- Shown only to people who've booked a call
- The point is simple. Every time they open their phone before the call, they see Bri or someone from the Somerled team.

STAGES 1 & 6 · ADS AND CONTENT

Diversify Creative, Add Long-Form

NEEDS WORK

Current ad library mix

~5 hours

of content exposure is what people typically need before making a buying decision. Long-form content gets them there faster.

Ads

- There are no static reels in the library yet. That's the easiest gap to fill.
- Only one testimonial ad exists. Client results are probably Somerled's best selling point, so I'd make several more for retargeting.
- Your Instagram short-form is good. Test the best-performing posts as ads.

Content

- Start a long-form YouTube channel. Property breakdowns and before/afters give prospects something to watch while they decide.
- Build a masterclass on strategic STR design that you can run in ads and send in emails.
- After I booked, I didn't get a single marketing email. A regular email schedule would fix that.

ROADMAP

The 30 / 60 / 90-Day Rollout

Biggest leaks first. Each phase builds on the one before it.

30 DAYS

Fix the front door

- Launch the new landing page
- Record and publish the 5-minute VSL (tracked in Wistia)
- Switch to one Typeform with partial-response capture
- Launch the qualified and not-a-fit pages

Goal: more applications from the same traffic.

60 DAYS

Pre-sell every booking

- Record the confirmation video and 5 breakout videos
- Launch the 2-a-day pre-call email sequence
- Launch booked-call retargeting (10+ ad sets)
- Follow up partial applications by email

Goal: higher show rates and warmer calls.

90 DAYS

Feed the top of the funnel

- Diversify ad creative: static reels and testimonials
- Test top Instagram posts as ads
- Launch a long-form YouTube channel
- Build the masterclass

Goal: more qualified owners entering the funnel.
